

Aklanta Kalita
Senior Vice President
Edelman Public & Government Affairs

Aklanta Kalita is Senior Vice President at Edelman Government & Public Affairs, with two decades of experience advising organizations on policy, reputation, and high-stakes risk across South Asia. He has worked extensively with multinational companies, government agencies, and development institutions to navigate complex regulatory environments and build effective stakeholder engagement strategies. With sectoral expertise spanning energy, infrastructure, technology, pharmaceuticals, FMCG, hospitality, and healthcare, Aklanta is also recognized as a Japan–South Asia specialist, having supported leading Japanese corporations and public institutions with cultural fluency and on-the-ground insight in cross-border operations and policy dialogue.

Before joining Edelman, Aklanta was with APCO Worldwide, where he helped develop and execute public affairs programs for global majors such as Corning, Yahoo, Tesco, Dow Corning, Invista, Eastman Kodak, Coca-Cola, and Dell. He also worked in corporate advisory, assisting companies including Nikon, Hitachi Cables, Nissan Motor Manufacturing, and ZTE with industry research, entry strategy, and feasibility studies. He holds a master's degree in broadcast journalism and began his career as a correspondent with Asian News International, reporting on business and current affairs—a grounding that continues to shape his pragmatic and evidence-led approach to public affairs and risk management.