

Sukumar Ranganathan is the Editor-in-Chief of Hindustan Times, leading the editorial direction of one of India's premier national newspapers. He previously served as the Editor of Mint from 2008 to 2017, having joined the publication as one of its founding editors in 2006. Prior to his leadership at Mint, he held key editorial leadership roles at The Hindu Business Line and Business Today. With an academic foundation spanning chemical engineering, mathematics, and business administration, his professional interests focus on science and technology, data-driven political journalism, business history, and emerging digital media.