

Smriti Sharma is Head of Public Policy at Apple India, where she leads policy strategy and government engagement across taxation, supply chains and digital competition.

With two decades of cross-sectoral experience, Smriti has worked across industry, multilateral institutions, academic research and industry associations. Her earlier roles include Amazon, NASSCOM, the National Institute of Public Finance and Policy (NIPFP), the Trade and Investment Division at UN Economic and Social Commission.

Before moving into public policy, Smriti spent nearly a decade as a journalist and news anchor with CNBC and NDTV.

She holds a Masters in Public Policy from Duke University.